Description

A stylish and highly decorative Louis Vuitton monogram canvas shoe case, dating to circa 1930 and now presented as an exceptional coffee table. Fully marked and labelled, the case retains the unmistakable character of early Louis Vuitton travel luggage, combining the celebrated monogram canvas with the practical, finely made construction for which the house became renowned.

Originally designed to protect footwear while travelling, the compact case has the strong proportions and rich surface patina that make vintage Vuitton luggage so desirable as an interior statement. Its warm brown canvas, leather trim, metal fittings, and original identifying details speak to an era when luxury travel was defined by craftsmanship, durability, and elegant utility.

The case has been thoughtfully elevated on a contemporary light-oak stand and finished with a fitted glass top. This sensitive conversion preserves the integrity and visual appeal of the original luggage while creating a practical, usable table. The clean-lined oak base offers a pleasing contrast to the aged monogram canvas, while the glass surface allows the case to remain fully visible and protected.

Equally at home in a sitting room, library, dressing room, or boutique interior, this distinctive piece brings together the romance of 1930s travel and contemporary design. A rare and characterful furnishing for collectors of Louis Vuitton luggage, lovers of travel-inspired interiors, or anyone seeking a coffee table with genuine history and individuality.
