Description

A superb triple-strand necklace of graduated cultured pearls, finished with an elegant 18ct white gold clasp set with diamonds and a striking sugar-loaf cabochon emerald.

The three strands are arranged in a gentle progression, creating a full, graceful drape at the neck while allowing the natural lustre of the pearls to take centre stage. Their soft, luminous surfaces offer a timeless contrast to the crisp brilliance of the diamond-set clasp, which is centred by a richly coloured sugar-loaf emerald. Cut in the distinctive high-domed pyramidal form, the emerald provides a beautiful focal point and brings a vivid note of colour to the restrained elegance of the pearls.

The clasp is designed as an integral decorative feature rather than a purely functional fastening. Its white gold mount and diamond accents lend sparkle and refinement, while the emerald gives the piece a luxurious and individual character. Worn with the clasp to the side or at the front, it becomes an especially striking detail.

A versatile and sophisticated jewel, equally suited to formal occasions, bridal wear, or elegant evening dressing. The classic appeal of pearls, elevated by the emerald and diamond clasp, makes this necklace a particularly desirable addition to a fine jewellery collection.
