

Triple strand progressing pearl necklace

£560

Description

A triple strand necklace of progressing cultured pearls with an 18ct white gold clasp set with diamonds and a sugar-loaf emerald.

Cultured pearls are formed when humans insert a small bead or tissue into an oyster or mollusc to stimulate the creation of a pearl. Unlike natural pearls, which form by chance, cultured pearls are carefully cultivated under controlled conditions. Layers of nacre, a lustrous material, build around the implant, creating the pearl.

They come in various shapes, sizes, and colours and are widely used in jewellery for their beauty and affordability compared to natural pearls.
