

Victorian stick and bead coral fringe necklace with gold barrel clasp, circa 1880

Sold

Description

Victorian stick and bead coral fringe necklace with gold barrel clasp, circa 1880.

Stick coral, characterised by its branch-like, tubular structure, is a type of coral often used in jewelry and decorative items. Its vibrant red or orange hues and natural, rugged texture make it popular in artisanal and antique pieces. Stick coral symbolises protection and vitality, valued for its striking, organic beauty.