The decorative style of the Bloomsbury Group's Charleston farmhouse was vibrant, personal, and deeply artistic. At Charleston Farmhouse, members of the Bloomsbury Group transformed an ordinary country house into a living artwork. Artists such as Vanessa Bell and Duncan Grant painted walls, furniture, fireplaces, and doors with bold patterns and playful motifs.

Inspired by Post-Impressionism and decorative arts, the interiors mixed colour, hand-painted designs, and everyday objects. The result was informal yet expressive, reflecting the group's belief that art should be integrated into daily life rather than confined to galleries.
