Description

A 19th century Meji period porcelain Kutani basket, circa 1870.

Kutani ware is a traditional Japanese porcelain style originating from Kutani village in Ishikawa Prefecture, dating back to the 17th century. Renowned for its vibrant colors and intricate designs, Kutani ware often features bold motifs, including nature, landscapes, and mythical creatures.

Artists use overglaze techniques to achieve rich hues like red, green, yellow, purple, and blue. Revered for its artistry and craftsmanship, Kutani ware remains a cherished symbol of Japanese ceramic heritage, prized by collectors world-wide.
