Description

An original leather pig stool by Omersa for Liberty, London, made between 1930 and 1939.

Omersa leather animals are a distinctive line of handcrafted leather creations, originally designed for Liberty, a renowned British department store. These whimsical, lifelike animals, ranging from elephants to pigs, are made using high-quality leather and meticulous craftsmanship.

The animals have become a symbol of luxury and craftsmanship, with each piece being a unique work of art. Omersa leather animals combine functional design with a playful charm, making them highly sought-after collectors' items.
