Amanda Birkitt Art Nouveau style silver brooch. London hallmarks.

Amanda Birkitt is a distinguished British silversmith renowned for her handcrafted, one-of-a-kind creations in precious metals. Graduating from Buckingham New University in 1980, she has since dedicated her career to producing unique pieces that blend traditional silversmithing techniques with contemporary design.

Each item is meticulously crafted and polished by hand, ensuring no two are alike. Her work often features organic forms and intricate details, exemplified by a modern silver spoon with a sinuous pierced stem and purple cabochon, hallmarked in London in 2003.

Birkitt's jewellery, such as her sterling silver modernist work showcases abstract links and bears her maker's mark "AB," reflecting her commitment to artistry and individuality.
