Description

A refined pair of circa 1950 diamond cluster ear studs, crafted in 18ct white gold and set throughout with brilliant-cut diamonds. Their classic floral cluster design places the diamonds closely together to create a beautifully bright, continuous display of scintillation, lending the impression of a single, generously proportioned jewel at each ear.

The cool white gold settings complement the clear brilliance of the diamonds, while allowing the stones to remain the focus. Designed with balanced proportions and a low-profile silhouette, these earrings offer the enduring elegance of mid-century jewellery while remaining exceptionally wearable today.

Cluster earrings of this quality are among the most versatile of diamond jewels: substantial enough to bring light and presence to evening dress, yet refined and comfortable enough for everyday wear. Their timeless form makes them an ideal addition to a fine jewellery collection, a thoughtful gift, or an elegant choice for a wedding or special occasion.
