Description

A cased set of six Art Deco Danish silver gilt and enamel tea spoons with English hallmarks for Birmingham 1934.

Danish enamel silverware is renowned for its exquisite craftsmanship, blending sterling silver with vibrant enamel designs. Prominent in the early 20th century, artisans like Meka, Anton Michelsen, and Georg Jensen created intricate jewelry, flatware, and decorative pieces. The enameling process involves fusing glass powder onto silver, producing colorful, glossy finishes.

Highly collectible, these pieces often feature floral, geometric, or abstract motifs. Danish enamel silverware remains a symbol of elegance and fine Scandinavian artistry.
